Future Leader Dog Lucian

When Amy Chevalier’s daughter began taking her first steps, Amy came to a realization. The diabetic retinopathy that had progressed rapidly during her pregnancy had left her legally blind, and with a lack of confidence in her mobility. “I wasn’t afraid to cross streets by myself but the thought of doing it with my baby was terrifying to me.” That is when Amy decided to get a guide dog.

“I looked at it so simply: by having a Leader Dog I would feel safe to cross the streets to take my daughter to the park. I had no idea that having a Leader Dog would allow me to do so much more and how that Leader Dog would change my life. Other than driving, there isn’t anything that I haven’t been able to do with my daughter because I’ve had a guide dog.”

Amy Chevalier and Leader Dog Ember

A Message from Susan Daniels

In today's world, our clients need Leader Dogs that aren't just obedient but that can actually think and make life or death decisions. The level of training needed to produce this caliber of dog begins in our kennel, where our future Leader Dogs and best training practices come together. The ongoing improvement of our services is paramount to achieving our mission, and the construction that began in August of 2014 to renovate our kennel into a world-class Canine Development Center will allow us to provide the optimal environment for housing Leader Dogs in training while they learn their life-saving work.

We have learned so much about canine behavior and training since the 1960s when our kennel was built. We now understand that a dog's environment has a huge impact on its ability to develop the skills and characteristics necessary to handle the responsibility of guiding a person who is blind. That is why every aspect of the Canine Development Center was designed to create the ideal environment for our dogs; one that reduces stress, provides greater socialization, maximizes human interaction and best prepares Leader Dogs for their remarkable work.

It is an honor and a pleasure to serve as the president and CEO of Leader Dogs for the Blind. I look forward to increasing our capacity to serve our clients for years to come.

Sincerely,

Susan M. Daniels

President & CEO

In spite of becoming blind at age 8, Daniel Enghamed became the best paralympic swimmer in history, and the only blind runner who has finished the toughest triathlon competition that exists.

"I believe if we don't move, we start dying. And the reason behind that is—in the moments we are moving, we are creating more emotion. With a Leader Dog, I can live my life as a sighted person."

Daniel Enghamed and Leader Dog Adele
