

Practice Giving Descriptive Instructions

Materials Needed:

Paper

Pencil, Pen and/or other drawing materials

2 (or more) people

Steps:

Try describing how to draw one of the pictures below to your friend. Give the person step by step instructions and at the end compare their drawing to the picture provided. To make it more fun don't watch while the person draws! To make it more challenging, have them draw all four!

This activity makes you think about how to verbally describe something without the person being able to see it. People who are blind many times cannot see a picture and require a verbal description. When teaching our clients how to do something we must use very descriptive language to help them understand what we are asking them.
